

2016-04-07 / Front Page

Councilors take aim at target shooting

By Tim Riel

Following three public meetings in eight months, adopting an ordinance to regulate target shooting is in the town's crosshairs.

The Jamestown Town Council will have a public hearing on the contentious law Tuesday night.

A committee of Town Administrator Andy Nota, Police Chief Ed Mello and Town Councilors Kristine Trocki and Mary Meagher recommended four subsections to the weapons chapter. While the language has some blanks for specifics, the draft regulates setbacks, times and permissions.

The proposed section mandates ranges be private property. If firing in a neighbor's yard, the shooter must have written permission from the landowner. According to the draft, the shooter is required to show the consent to police officers on request.

Specific times and setbacks were left void, but the committee made suggestions at its February meeting. One recommendation was from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays. Shooting at night, Mello said, should not be allowed.

As for setbacks, Mello researched neighboring communities and reported regulations ranging between 375 to 1,000 feet. He recommended a 500-foot setback from any building or property line.

The ordinance also would define "firearm" and "discharge," and would prohibit shooting along or across public roads. Finally, language indicates that new regulations have no bearing on the right to use a firearm in self-defense.

The controversy began in August 2014 after residents expressed safety concerns.

"My son can't go for a walk in the woods without bullets whizzing by his head," William Brazil of East Shore Road wrote then in a letter to the town councilors.

Residents complained about ranges on Wildflower Lane, North Main Road and Carr Lane. Gunshots also have been reported at the community farm on Eldred Avenue.

The first of the three meetings was conducted last July, and more than a dozen residents on both sides of the issue were heard. According to Councilor Blake Dickinson, outdoorsmen have a long history of self-policing.

“If someone was shooting near the schools, we wouldn’t tolerate it,” he said. “That’s why it’s never happened. We have too much to lose.”

Initially, Dickinson was open to regulations if they would alleviate fears. However, he believes the discussion has morphed. Opponents also questioned times. First, the final meeting of the committee to discuss target shooting was at 10 a.m. on a Tuesday. Second, the shooting hours discussed end by 4 p.m..

“What do you do at that time?” Dickinson asked. “Most people work.”

His brother, Bruce, said more people get hurt riding bicycles. Shooting is an Olympic sport, he said, and teaching gun safety is important. He shoots with his sons.

“I think it’s good that we’re talking about this,” he said. “But we have to be very careful about pushing young people back into the house.”

Jonathan Caito is also a target shooter. He fires guns at his mother’s house on Wildflower Lane. According to Caito, safety is his top priority. There is no alcohol allowed, he said, and everyone on the range wears eye protection. Also, he alerts the police department when he is shooting.

Phil Willis has been target shooting at his range on North Main Road for 40 years, he said, and there has never been an enforcement problem. However, he believes the problems stems from homeowners not being able to rent their properties.

“They hear shooting and they don’t rent,” he said. “That’s the crux of this whole damn problem.”

On the flipside, Mike de Angeli said he lives 200 feet from a range. While he is not against shooting, the noise has become a nuisance.

Under current law, Christian Infantolino said, shooters could begin firing at 2 p.m. near the schools and the police have no authority to stop it. Whether or not that happens, he said, is not the issue. Chris Cannon noted the town has a rule requiring a 4-foot fence around a swimming pool but no law governing firearms.

Paul Balzer, who was a police officer for 32 years in Jamestown, said he sees both sides of the

HEALTH & WELLNESS DIRECTORY

HOME HEALTH

Consistent Care Corporation

Personalized Home Health
& Nursing Needs

423-1060

On-Call Services

Available 24 Hours Per Day
For Emergencies 265-9981

PHYSICIAN

The Rhode Island Hand Center
Surgery and Care of the Hand and Upper Extremity
Leonard E. Hubbard, MD
www.rhishandcenter.com
401-942-0280

PHYSICIAN

SOUTH COUNTY MEDICAL GROUP
PRIMARY CARE - FAMILY MEDICINE
A Member of the South County Medical Group

Primary Care

Derek Ardolfson, MD
Laura J. Haveler, MD
Karen R. Sestel, MD
Nicole Perini Scarsawski, MD

- Comprehensive care for the entire family
- On-site lab and imaging
- Evening hours, too

3461 South County Trail, Rt 2

401 471-6760

www.southcountyhealth.org

Visit us at JamestownPress.com

Avoid ticks, Zika virus

In stock, we have Sawyer Permethrin insect repellent

JAMESTOWN
Hardware
HARDWARE

WE'VE GOT MOST OF IT.
The rest will be here Thursday!

BRING EVERY PRODUCT IN A
True Value.

5 Narragansett Avenue • 425-2722

NEWPORT
LAMP & SHADE
COMPANY

FINE GIFTS - LAMPS & LAMP SHADES
EXPERT LAMP REPAIR - ANTIQUES & DECORATIONS

App. Shop Hours: Tuesday - Saturday 10:00 AM - 5:00 PM

50 NARRAGANSETT STREET NEWPORT, RI NEWPORTLAMPANDSHADE.COM TEL. 401.847.0288

Visit Our New Showroom at One Pier Marketplace in Narragansett

KITCHENS DIRECT INC.
Quality Cabinetry & Countertops

NARRAGANSETT • 401-783-3100      SEABOARD • 508-557-0302
1 PIER MARKETPLACE, NARRAGANSETT, RI      68 MAIN ST. - WISE SQUARE, SEABOARD, MA

Find us on Angie's list | KITCHENSDIRECTNE.COM